On successful completion of this module, students will be able to...

1. a) develop a theoretical and conceptual understanding of the major therapeutic models which underpin counselling skills including an appreciation of multiple perspectives;
   b) demonstrate an appreciation how the use of counselling skills is related to the BACP ethical framework for good practice;
   c) demonstrate and understanding of the attitudes, values, and beliefs which, according to selected theories, facilitate change and growth.

2. a) understand, recognize and implement basic counselling techniques necessary for effective counselling;
   b) detect that there are meaningful patterns in behaviour and experience;
   c) demonstrate a basic understanding of ethical issues in relation to counselling practice.

3. a) communicate ideas effectively using a range of written and oral means;
   b) be computer literate for the purposes of furthering their own learning and the presentation of ideas;
   c) participate in and be aware of contextual and interpersonal factors in groups and teams;
   d) undertake self-directed study in a supportive environment;
   e) recognise the need to assess their own skills and to harness them;
   f) recognise some of their own strengths as well as areas for development;
   g) recognise the value and application of ethical principles in a broader social context.

Learning, Teaching and Assessment Strategy

The module will be delivered using a variety of methods including seminars (LO's 1a, 1b, 1c), exercises designed for skills practice (LO's 2a, 2b, 2c), counselling role play (LO's 2a, 2b, 2c), small group work and discussion groups (LO's 1a-c, 2a-c). The format will normally follow: theory, skills and personal development (which will utilize small group work). You will be encouraged to take responsibility for your own personal development learning and you should be active, participative and experiential. Part of learning will be conducted by means of a weekly reflective journal. Assessment 1 tests LO's 1a-1c, 3a-g; Assessment 2 tests LO's 2a-c, 3a-g.
