Module Aims

This module focuses on the therapeutic process, from initial assessment, through to identifying treatment needs, designing therapeutic interventions, delivering these interventions, and evaluating their outcome. Throughout this module you are encouraged to reflect on your initial attempts at counselling practice, identifying strengths and areas for improvement.

Outline Syllabus
- Recognise and apply the principles of one or more major therapeutic models in counselling.
- Comprehend the need for an ethical framework for good practice in counselling.
- Further develop awareness of personal strengths and limitations as they affect counselling.
- Learn to frame the helping act from a multicultural perspective and appreciate the importance of cultural sensitivity in counselling work.
- Develop an appreciation of the importance of ongoing supervision and feedback in counselling work.
- Recognise and address ethical issues in applying helping skills.
- Understand, recognise, and implement counselling techniques necessary for effective counselling.
- Assess personal assets, limitations, and reactions to theories and develop an initial personal philosophy of counselling and how people change.
- Apply counselling skills to appropriately address issues raised in counselling skills sessions with colleagues.
- Reflect on strengths and areas of improvement in personal counselling practice.

Module Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this module, students will be able to...

1  a) demonstrate an understanding of the complexities of contractual relationships in counselling contexts;
    b) develop deeper appreciation of the skills needed to deliver a psychological intervention and the theories that underpin these approaches;
    c) identify the attitudes, values, and beliefs are thought to facilitate change and growth, recognising different philosophical paradigms.

2  a) demonstrate awareness of the skills needed to deliver a psychological intervention, and use skills these in practical activities;
    b) implement assessments to evaluate intervention based engagement;
    c) demonstrate ethical competence in engaging in counselling practice;
    d) demonstrate competence in reflecting effectively e.g. developing the ability to learn from experiential encounters.

3  a) communicate ideas effectively using a range of written and oral means;
    b) be computer literate for the purposes of furthering your own learning and the presentation of ideas;
    c) participate in and be aware of contextual and interpersonal factors in groups and teams;
    d) undertake self-directed study in a supportive environment;
    e) recognise the need to assess your own skills and to harness them;
    f) recognise some of your own strengths as well as areas for development;
    g) recognise the value and application of ethical principles in a broader social context.

Learning, Teaching and Assessment Strategy

The module is taught by a combination of seminars (LO's 1a-1c), laboratory based practical activities and group discussions (LO's 2a-2c, 3a-3g). The laboratory activities provide you with the opportunity to observe videos (with accompanying worksheets) read and discuss case histories and complete pen and paper exercises and practical activities in order to further explore issues raised in the seminar. Assessment 1 will test LO's 1a-1c, 2a-2c, 3a-
Assessment 2 will test LO's 1a-1c, 3a-3g.
