Module Aims
The module aims to introduce a range of psychological explanations of the lifestyle choices people make and develop students' understandings of behaviour change.

Outline Syllabus
Psychological approaches to understanding behaviour and choice; behaviour change models; addiction, habit, craving and compulsion; attitudes and persuasion; personality and individual identity; neurodiversity; groups and social influence; family influences and lifespan development.

Learning Outcomes
Outcome Number	Description
01	Outline and compare a range of explanations of human thought and behaviour.
02	Select appropriate concepts to explore particular aspects of individual choice and behaviour.
03	Identify areas of contention in psychology.
04	Discuss the relative merits of selected psychological explanations of individual choice and behaviour.
04	Develop and express an academic argument in a clear and coherent style.

Learning, Teaching and Assessment Strategy
The module will be delivered using a blended approach of online and on-campus activities. Teaching will include key lectures, seminars, directed study, and tutorials. Some activities will be delivered face-to-face on campus, some will be delivered as a live (asynchronous) session online and some as an asynchronous session online - meaning you can access the online activities and resources at your own convenience. Lectures, seminars and directed study will introduce students to a range of perspectives on human behaviour and individual choice (LO 1, 2, 3). Guided activities will support students to examine and discuss different perspectives in relation to individual choice and behaviour, as well as supporting students to identify and discuss relevant literature sources (LO 4, 5).
