Introduction

Social workers aim to improve people's lives by helping with social and interpersonal difficulties, promoting human rights and wellbeing. Social workers protect children and adults with support needs from harm. From helping to keep a family under pressure together, to supporting someone with mental distress, social work is a varied, demanding, often emotional and very rewarding career.

During 2018, Ruth Allen, Chief Executive of the British Association of Social Workers (BASW) gave the following description of the profession:

"Social Work is about life, treasuring humanity, building connections, sharing, and promoting fairness.

It is about creativity, care, and love – being there to help people overcome obstacles and oppression that hold them back.

For people using our services, a social worker should be someone to trust and believe in – someone who helps you believe in yourself.

Sometimes we must hold boundaries, protect rights, advocate, and challenge.

We are always in the midst of the messy stuff, finding ways forward"

The aim of our BA (Hons) Social Work Degree Apprenticeship (SWDA) is to produce confident, competent, qualified social work practitioners. The programme therefore offers both academic and professional outcomes. Academic outcomes are available at Certificate of Higher Education in Social Care, Diploma of Higher Education in Social Care, BA in Social Care and the BA (Hons) in Social Work levels.

The professional status of social worker is conferred by Social Work England and successful graduates are eligible to register with Social Work England as a qualified social worker. We offer a well-established programme with a national reputation for producing high calibre workers. Our programme is designed, managed, and delivered by an Apprenticeship Management Board that reports to the Bradford Social Work Teaching Partnership and includes Bradford Local Authority, practice placement agencies, apprentices, people that use services, lecturers, and practitioners.

Why Bradford?

The University of Bradford has a long and established tradition of developing, nurturing, and educating high quality, knowledgeable, and insightful social work professionals. Teaching is delivered in unique and innovative ways which challenge and stretch apprentices, but which also ultimately prepare them well for their future careers by providing them access to support from a tremendously experienced social work academic team supported by direct involvement from social work practitioners and people with lived experience of social work services.

We have a strong research background and focus, with a particular emphasis on child protection, rights-based practice, and a keen focus on co-production and collaborative interventions, such that our social work department is influential in shaping national, social work policy.

It is an exciting time to join us in Bradford. Our Teaching Partnership, which includes the University of Bradford and Bradford Council Social Services departments, not only guarantees apprentices access to interesting professional placements during their studies, but the strong teaching partnership links mean that all our social work apprentice graduates will secure immediate qualified employment upon graduating, within Bradford local authority. They will receive fully supported supervision and career development from both children's and adults social care and have continued involvement and support from The University of Bradford Social Work Department. Many of the graduates go on to play a substantive role as part of our alumni and support teaching and learning on the programmes. In addition, many return to complete post qualifying specialist awards in areas such as mental health at the University and continue to maintain strong supportive working arrangements with the Social Work department throughout their careers.

Our MA and BA programmes are contemporary and at the forefront of the national social work discourse. Apprentices will study alongside the BA social work students for many of their modules (and the MA social work students for a couple of modules). Whilst there are distinct differences between the programmes, the shared learning opportunities will enhance all learners by allowing access to the diversity of lived and work experiences across the different cohort programmes.

Standards and Frameworks

The BA (Hons) Social Work (Apprenticeship) curriculum is underpinned by the following standards and frameworks:

- Social Work England's Education and training standards (2021).

Stakeholder Involvement

Stakeholder involvement ensures that our apprenticeship programme maintains a dynamic, outward-looking approach towards social work education with a clear focus on the needs of people with lived experience. The following groups and organisations play an active part in the life of the programme:

- Employers: We are part of the Bradford Social Work Teaching Partnership with Bradford Council and Bradford College. The partnership works to provide good quality placements with the local authority. We also have several partnerships with third sector organisations.
- People who use services: User involvement is vital to the life of our programme and is an area we are committed to expanding. At the present time, people with lived experience of social work are employed as module teachers and guest speakers. They are also involved in local action-based research, and they co-run local and national conferences and provide advice on programme design.
- Apprentices: We seek feedback from apprentices on every aspect of the programme, including placement provision, module content and teaching, and programme management and design.
- Lecturers: All the lecturers teaching the programme are qualified social workers, with substantial practice experience. We work within a strong team ethos that ensures all lecturers are involved in the management and running of the programme.
- Practitioners: Social Work Practitioners are involved in the teaching and assessment of practice placements, and in teaching within the academic setting. They also monitor placement standards and interview programme applicants.

Programme Aims

The programme is intended to:

A1. Provide knowledge to apprentices of social work services and of people with lived experience, the service delivery context, values and ethics in social work, theories and methods of social work, and the nature of social work practice.

Curriculum

During the three years of your SWDA you will be studying alongside social work students who are following the direct route into the undergraduate programme. Some modules will also involve you studying alongside students who are not on a social work programme. This will enable you to have experience of learning inter-professionally.

There are no optional or elective modules on the programme; all 360 credits are core.

Please note: The curriculum may change, subject to the University's programme approval, monitoring, and review processes and the ongoing requirements of the standards and frameworks applying to the programme.

Stage 1

The first year of training (Stage 1) provides apprentices with initial knowledge and understanding of the context of social work practice and equips them with the required practice skills to undertake their first social work placement.

Apprentices should develop an understanding of historical perspectives and contemporary issues within social work; social policy underpinning social work practice; values and ethics; communication skills; sociological and psychological explanations of human development; skills in assessment, planning, intervention, and evaluation. The knowledge and skills here will be developed in stages 2 and 3 within a spiral curriculum approach.

At the end of stage one, apprentices will be assessed by a panel in terms of readiness for direct practice. Apprentices must successfully complete the Readiness for Direct Social Work Practice (Apprenticeship Route) module at level four before they can take up their first placement. This forms the end point of the Readiness to Direct Social Work Practice module (SOW4021Z) that acts as a central hub to the curriculum. Within this module students will learn from experts by experience including both people who use social work services and social work practitioners. This module prepares students for their first professional practice placement and must be passed as professional body requirement. This module includes a minimum of 20 study skills days in preparation for placement which are mandatory, with a further 10 days hosted within the Practice Learning 1 Level 5 and Practice learning 2 at Level 6.

THIS AWARD DOES NOT CONFER ELIGIBILITY TO REGISTER WITH SOCIAL WORK ENGLAND.

Stage 2

The second year (Stage 2) builds upon this foundation and focuses upon the development of specialist skills with particular groups of people that use services.

Apprentices will be taught the legal and policy framework in relation to practice. This will correlate with the following key areas: mental distress, childcare, disability and work with older people, communication and interviewing skills, and level two social work theories, models and methods of working with individuals, families, and carers.

In Semester 2 apprentices will undertake a practice placement that is assessed at the End of First Placement level of the Professional Capabilities Framework. Of the 30 Mandatory skills days; 5 days will be hosted within the Practice Learning 1 during stage 2.

Stage 3

The final year (Stage 3) work emphasises the importance of autonomous learning, the acquisition of evidence-based practice skills and final preparation for paid employment.

Academic work focuses upon reflective practice; research and evaluation; as well as the critical application of social work theories; and developing cultural competence in social work.

Apprentices will undertake a block placement which involves continuous assessment in relation to the Professional Capabilities Framework and apprenticeship standards. Of the 30 Mandatory skills days; 5 days will be hosted within the Practice Learning 2 during stage 3.

BA (Hons) Social Work graduates can apply to join the Social Work England register upon payment of a registration fee and meeting the SWE application requirements.

Learning, Teaching and Assessment Strategy

Studying Social Work as an apprentice

The apprenticeship provides an alternative route for employees to gain a social work qualification. The apprentice would be employed by the local authority therefore the major advantage would be that they would be salaried whilst studying. The apprenticeship requires a greater emphasis on employer engagement and work readiness evaluation, the Department of Social Work & Social Care has established an excellent track record of collaborative practice and assessment with employers and agencies.

Apprentices will come with prior social care experience (basic workplace experience) however will not necessarily have any level 3 qualifications (initial assessment / skills-scan), as such our programme will support them by providing appropriate support for each learner, for example by working closely with Academic Student Support to meet the individual academic learning needs of each apprentice, whilst ensuring that learners are stretched whilst on their practice placements (each learner will have an individualised Initial Practice Learning Agreement meeting prior to, and during their professional practice placements). At the start of the Social Work Degree Apprenticeship apprentices will have a skills scan and complete an independent learning Plan. During the first semester of year 1 apprentices undertake the Academic Skills Development for Apprentices module which introduces them to higher education study and academic skills.

Our programme is built around core professional and educational values of human rights, co-production, and learner-centred practice. This inclusive approach that puts learners at the heart of the programme is supported by the university's Learning and Teaching Strategy, and curriculum architecture. In practice this means that we facilitate a continuous dialogue with apprentices where we set out from the start that they are partners in their learning journey such that they may shape the curriculum based on their learning needs and lived experiences (e.g., apprentices are encouraged to direct the content of, and lead on the delivery of sessions within the readiness to direct social work practice module). Such an approach models co-production and collaborative practice within the curriculum. Our support of apprentices begins from their starting point, where we take a bespoke approach to supporting apprentices. For example, in the first semester apprentices are supported with academic skills (e.g., writing, referencing etc.,) using blogs as a formative teaching tool as a steppingstone prior to their first written summative assessment. We also offer apprentices academic skills workshops during this first semester where they can be supported both as a group and on a one-to-one basis to meet their individual learning needs.

Apprentices have 12 weekly tripartite meetings (with apprentice, tutor, and employer) to review learning progress and wellbeing utilising self-assessment, the initial skills scan, and individual learning plan. Apprentices will produce a reflective narrative of their work-based learning and profession development (uploaded to the e-Portfolio) that will be discussed as part of the Tripartite Review.

Additionally, apprentices will have access to a monthly learner forum where they will have opportunities to discuss and suggest ideas to develop the curriculum along with an opportunity to explore their individual learning journey. Also, the apprentice will attend a fortnightly apprenticeship seminar to discuss the links between the on-the-job (work-based) and off-the-job (academic modules) learning in the light of the Apprenticeship Standards and PCF.

Teaching and Learning Methods

The programme has a clear system of learning development, through a spiral curriculum, where skills and knowledge are developed through modules and assessments, as apprentices progress through the stages of the programme. For example, in their first year (level 4) apprentices are introduced to presentation skills (including formative, peer-reviewed practice presentations) which leads to a summative assessment based on their own lived experiences (this introductory assessment requires no external research). This is built on at level 5 where apprentices are supported to develop their presentational skills that is demonstrated through a longer summative assessment where apprentices also need to identify and analyse research. Finally, during their End Point Assessment (level 6) apprentices are supported to further develop their analytical and evaluative skills and apply these to case scenarios as well as their own practice, which is assessed via assessment discussion and presentation followed by panel. Similarly, apprentices are introduced to viva voce examinations and to written assessments at level 4, which are subsequently built upon, leading to the EPA.

The social work degree apprenticeship has been designed with a focus on inclusion, where the principles of Universal Design for Learning are integrated throughout the programme wherever possible. For example, apprentices are supported to submit parts of their Readiness to Practice assessment in one of a variety of different formats that reflects their learning style and yet still provides the ability to robustly demonstrate meeting the learning outcomes and apprenticeship standards (e.g., poetry, blogs, digital storytelling).

Our skills in teaching rest upon a commitment to clear learning outcomes, a structured system of progression, imaginative assessments, and the provision of safe, stimulating learning environments. Our academic team have a variety of specialist practice, and research skills as well as a commitment to providing high quality teaching and learning. Teaching on the programme is delivered through face-to-face interactive workshops, seminars, online learning activities and tutorials (individual and small groups).

We adopt a 'flipped learning' approach for much of the curriculum, where apprentices are given guided preparatory reading and research tasks, followed by facilitated, critical and reflective discussions of the material, in class, such that deep learning skills (e.g., emotional literacy, critical thinking, reflective practice) are developed through a mix of apprentice-led and tutor-led group discussions. This approach to learning is supported by Canvas (our VLE), that uses discussion boards, forums, polls, and quizzes, as well as numerous online resources, to support the diverse range of learning styles and approaches of our apprentices.

Professional Practice

Apprentices will undertake two professional practice placements, one in the second year (level 5) for 70 days, and a second for 100 days completed in the final year (level 6) prior to the gateway. These two practice placements will be in contrasting statutory settings (e.g., adults, and children and families), both within the employer agency. These two practice placements represent part of the on-the-job training component of the apprenticeship. Apprentices will be supported prior to each of their placements through guided sessions with the tutor and employer. This includes both bespoke development of academic skills such as the theory of critical reflection and planning and preparing for the practice placements. For example, each apprentice will be allocated a Practice Educator (from the employer) to support them throughout their professional practice placement, and to help apprentices make links between their academic knowledge, skills, and behaviours, and their practice on placement (praxis). Apprentices will have an initial practice placement learning meeting (apprentice, practice educator, employer, university), where their individual learning needs for the practice placement will be discussed and agreed. There will also be midpoint, and end of placement meetings to reflect learning to date and future needs (with the same individuals). These meetings will feed into the regular tripartite meetings throughout the apprentice's journey through the degree apprenticeship where evidence developed will be uploaded to the e-Portfolio. Apprentices will undergo a minimum of three direct observations of practice for each practice placement.

e-Portfolio System

The SWDA at The University of Bradford utilises an electronic portfolio (e-Portfolio) system, to record information about your progress, which is currently hosted on the PebblePad platform. You are required to regularly update this portfolio.

There are several tasks and documents that need to be completed on your e-Portfolio, and these all need to be completed before you can pass through the Gateway and can undertake your final SWDA End Point Assessment. Additional information on using the e-Portfolio and the EPA will be provided by the academic team.

Work-Based On-The-Job Learning

The global definition of social work is defined as:

"Social work is a practice-based profession and an academic discipline that promotes social change and development, social cohesion, and the empowerment and liberation of people. Principles of social justice, human rights, collective responsibility, and respect for diversities are central to social work. Underpinned by theories of social work, social sciences, humanities and indigenous knowledges, social work engages people and structures to address life challenges and enhance wellbeing. The above definition may be amplified at national and/or regional levels."

https://www.ifsw.org/what-is-social-work/global-definition-of-social-work/

As such, your social work degree apprenticeship is a both a practice-based and academic profession. Therefore, as an apprentice you are following a work-based and university-based route to social work qualification. Your employer will be involved in your learning throughout the apprenticeship and will be there to support you, just as the academic tutors from the University will. Your apprenticeship comprises of both 'on-the-job' and 'off-the-job' training (the former predominantly work-based learning, and the latter predominantly university-based learning).

This pattern of 'on-the-job' and 'off-the-job' training makes up the 20% off-the-job and 80% on-the-job training balance of the apprenticeship programme, as summarised in the table below.

Off-the-job Training	Semester 1 (12 weeks)	Semester 2 (12 weeks)	Rest of Year (24 weeks)	Total Off-the-job Training
Year 1	50%	50%	5%	27.5%
Year 2	50%	8.34%	5%	17%
Year 3	50%	8.34%	5%	17%
Mean	50%	22.23%	5%	20.5%

Table 1: Summary	v of off-the-iob	training over	48 weeks (exclud	dina 4 weeks of	fannual leave)
rubic 1. Summu		training over	TO WEEKS (EXCIU	aning i weeks of	unnuu icuvc)

During the academic semesters you will typically spend 2.5 days each week off-the-job training at the University. The remaining time will be on-the-job training made up of work-based practice or private study (the balance of these two will be agreed at the start of your apprenticeship as part of your Individual Learning Plan and reviewed at the 12-weekly tripartite meetings). The exception to this pattern is during your academic placements (see more about these below); these are blocks of work-based learning opportunities that are on-the-job training (there are five recall days during this period which are university-based and count as off-the-job training). Outside of the two academic semesters you will spend most of your time on-the-job training. However, you will continue to have academic seminars every two weeks as off-the-job training, as well as the continuation of the tripartite reviews.

Since social work is both an academic and practice-based discipline, it is essential to your learning that you can link the two together (this is known as praxis). This means applying the knowledge, skills, and behaviours learnt during your 'off-the-job' training at the University to work-based 'on-the-job' training; and using your work-based practice experience to inform, enhance, and help you understand knowledge learned at university. While you are in your workplace you should be thinking about the knowledge that is relevant to help you make sense of what is going on and help you decide on a course of action. Similarly, while you are engaged in academic study you should be thinking about your practice experiences and how this is relevant to what you are learning.

Reflective Narratives of Work-Based Learning

To help you make these links explicit (between your on-the-job and off-the-job training), you will complete four non-assessed, mandatory, reflective narratives of work-based learning (RNoWBL) each year that will be uploaded to your e-Portfolio and discussed at your tripartite reviews. Your Tutor and Employer will provide feedback and can recommend changes. These will enable you to develop and track your progress toward meeting the Social Work Apprenticeship Standards as well as give you practice in thinking more deeply about what you are doing and making connections between practice and knowledge. When completed and signed off, each RNoWBL needs to be uploaded to the e-Portfolio and/or the Virtual Learning Environment as part of your Social Work Apprenticeship Portfolio in preparation for the Gateway. An important thing to remember is that these reflective records are not the only way you are demonstrating how you meet the social work programme.

Essentially, you will choose something that you have done during your on-the-job work, and you will consider this in relation to the Apprenticeship Standards. The experience you choose can be something quite straightforward that you have done lots of times in your work or it could be something exceptional that stood out for you. What you choose is up to you, but you can discuss ideas for this with your Tutor as well as with others who are supporting you in the workplace. You will not be graded or awarded a pass/fail for your RNoWBL although your Tutor may suggest you complete a further record if they think you may have struggled to understand or articulate your experience in relation to one or more aspects of the standards. This will not be routine and should only be done as an exception and where the aim is to benefit your development.

For the second and third years of your Social Work Degree Apprenticeship, two of your four RNoWBL should be drawn from your practice placements.

Assessment Strategy

All assessments test skills in critical analysis and reflective practice in the integration of the practice and theory of social work. Assessment for the modules Practice Learning I (Stage 2) and Practice Learning II (Stage 3) includes passing a placement at the required level and the provision of evidence for 'fitness to practice' at the next stage of the degree. Other forms of assessment include essays; individual and group presentations and exercises; video and taped practice submissions; and participation in 'virtual learning' exercises.

If learners fail the practice element of the programme, then they may be offered another placement learning opportunity. However, this will mean a delay in terms of progress to the next level or accessing the Gateway. If an apprentice fails the practice learning assignments, which is the assessed academic component of the placement, they will have one further opportunity to resubmit the revised piece of work. In Year 1, apprentices must pass and complete the Readiness for Direct Social Work Practice module before they can progress to Year 2.

Study Abroad

This programme is not currently eligible for integrated Study Abroad opportunities. Because of the requirement to work across 48 weeks of the year, we do not recommend apprentices take part in short opportunities such as summer schools either.

Assessment Regulations

This Programme conforms to the standard University Undergraduate Assessment Regulations which are available at the link: https://www.bradford.ac.uk/regulations/

However, there are three exceptions to these regulations as listed below:

- 1. To receive the award of BA (Hons) Social Work, apprentices must achieve at least 40% in all modules.
- 2. Referral is not permitted in Readiness for direct practice (apprenticeship route).
- 3. Learners undertaking the BA (Hons) Social Work will not be considered for an Aegrotat award.

18. Admission Requirements

The programme is currently closed to general admissions. But, for eligible employees of our partners, we take into consideration several factors when assessing your application. It's not just about your grades; we take the time to understand your personal circumstances and make decisions based on your potential to thrive at university and beyond. Please note: These admission requirements are correct for the contemporary recruitment cycle and may be different when you are reading this document.

Apprenticeship Eligibility Criteria

The apprenticeship programme has a duration of 36 months.

Apprentices:

- have the right to work in the UK
- have a contract of employment and will be employed for the duration of their apprenticeship
- will hold a valid Enhanced Disclosure and Barring Service certificate ('DBS Check') that is available for inspection, normally arranged by their employer for the duration of their employment (see 'Fitness to practice' section otherwise)
- have been resident in the UK, Ireland, or EEA for the past 3 years. If they are an EEA resident, they should have obtained a pre-settled or settled status under the EU Settlement Scheme
- are not undertaking any other government funded programme
- will spend at least 50% of their working hours in England over the duration of the apprenticeship
- require significant development of new knowledge, skills, and behaviours against the apprenticeship standard
- can meet the 20% off-the-Job training requirements
- have not been asked to contribute financially to the cost of their apprenticeship
- will hold and can evidence as a minimum level 2 English and Maths qualifications (for example, Functional Skills, GCSE 4/C, equivalent or higher). Where assessment of English proficiency is required (for example, for EEA residents), the employer is responsible for arranging a suitable test (e.g. IELTS) before apprentices are admitted to the programme.

We attach importance not only to the amount of experience that you have gained but crucially to the learning that you have gained from it and are able to bring to the course and your professional development. It is helpful if you include in your personal statement, your roles and responsibilities, and reflections on the ways in which your experience has helped to prepare you for social work.

As part of the selection process, we interview short-listed candidates prior to making offers. The interview will use your personal statement to discuss your commitment to social work as a career and demonstrate that you can be entrusted to work with vulnerable children and adults. We will also take into consideration any factors which indicate students may be unsuitable to become a social worker, and examples of this include certain previous criminal convictions or episodes within your health record. All places are therefore offered subject to undertaking a Disclosure & Barring Service (DBS) check and a requirement undertake an Occupational Health assessment.

Fitness to practice

Social Work applicants must fulfil specific programme requirements regarding 'fitness to practice' as a professional social worker. To fulfil this requirement, apprentices will need to demonstrate a commitment to social work as a career and demonstrate that they can be entrusted to work with vulnerable children and adults.

We are therefore looking for people who have had some relevant experience of working with people in a voluntary, paid, or personal capacity. We will also take into consideration any factors which indicate learners may be unsuitable to become a social worker, and examples of this include certain previous criminal convictions and episodes within their health record.

As this programme may involve regular access to children and/or vulnerable adults, apprentices will be required to complete a Disclosure and Barring Service (DBS) application, outlining any and all previous convictions and cautions (including those 'spent'. The University will send further instructions as part of the admissions process.

Applicants are encouraged to attend university open days and will be offered opportunities to view the campus and discuss the Bradford experience with current learners.

Recognition of Prior Learning

Applications are welcome from learners with non-traditional qualifications, and/or significant personal/professional experience. Apprentices will receive an initial assessment (skills-scan) to establish their prior learning and starting point. This will both determine the appropriateness of the social work degree apprenticeship for the learner and enable an individualised learning plan to be developed for the apprentice (reviewed at the tripartite meetings and other regular points).

Note that Social Care experience does not equate to Social Work experience, knowledge, and skills, as the title 'social worker' and work of a social worker, is legally protected requiring registration under the professional body, Social Work England.

If applicants have prior certificated learning or professional experience which may be equivalent to parts of this programme, the University has procedures to evaluate and recognise this learning to provide applicants with exemptions from specified modules or parts of the programme. For more information about the University's Recognition of Prior Learning processes visit: https://www.bradford.ac.uk/teaching-quality/prior-learning/

Access and Inclusion

The University of Bradford has always welcomed applications from all prospective learners irrespective of ability and with regard to the Equality Act 2010 and protected characteristics. Applications are particularly welcomed from learners aged 21+ at the start of the programme, armed forces families, care-experienced people (care leavers and carers), estranged or orphaned learners, refugees and asylum seekers, and Romani or Traveller families.

To discuss your individual circumstances or to find out more about support and access, you may wish to contact Admissions (admissionsmls@bradford.ac.uk) and/or the University's Disability Service before you apply: https://www.bradford.ac.uk/disability/before/

Appendix 2 - Professional Capabilities Framework

Professionalism

Identify and behave as a professional social worker, committed to professional development.

Social workers are members of an internationally recognised profession. Our title is protected in UK law.

We demonstrate professional commitment by taking responsibility for our conduct, practice, self-care and development. We seek and use supervision and other professional support. We promote excellent practice and challenge circumstances that compromise this. As representatives of the profession, we safeguard its reputation. We are accountable to people using services, the public, employers and the regulator. We take ethical decisions in the context of multiple accountabilities.

- 1. Demonstrate an initial understanding of the role of the social worker.
- 2. Demonstrate motivation and commitment to become a social worker.
- 3. Identify my own potential strengths and challenges in relation to the role of social worker.
- 4. Demonstrate an initial understanding of the importance of personal self-care, resilience and adaptability in social work.
- 5. Demonstrate the ability to take responsibility for my own learning and development.

Values and ethics

Apply social work ethical principles and value to guide professional practices.

Social workers have an obligation to conduct themselves and make decisions in accordance with our Code of Ethics. This includes working in partnership with people who use our services.

We promote human rights and social justice. We develop and maintain our understanding of the value base of our profession throughout our career, its ethical standards and relevant law.

1. Recognise the impact my own values and attitudes can have on relationships with others.

- 2. Understand the importance of seeking the perspectives and views of service users and carers.
- 3. Recognise that social workers will need to deal with dilemmas, conflict and use the authority invested in their role.

Diversity and equality

Recognise diversity and apply anti-discriminatory and anti-oppressive principles in practice.

Social workers understand that diversity characterises and shapes human experience and is critical to the formation of identity. Diversity is multi-dimensional and includes race, disability, class, economic status, age, sexuality, gender (including transgender), faith and belief, and the intersection of these and other characteristics.

We understand that because of difference, and perception of difference, a person's life experience may include oppression, marginalisation and alienation as well as privilege, power and acclaim. We identify this and promote equality.

- 1. Demonstrate an initial understanding of difference and diversity within society, the importance of equal opportunities and the implications of this for social work practice.
- 2. Am receptive to the views of others.

Rights, justice and economic wellbeing

Advance human rights and promote social justice and economic wellbeing.

Social workers recognise and promote the fundamental principles of human rights, social justice and economic wellbeing enshrined in national and international laws, conventions and policies.

These principles underpin our practice, and we use statutory and case law effectively in our work. We understand and address the effects of oppression, discrimination and poverty. Wherever possible, we work in partnership with people using services, their carers and families, to challenge inequality and injustice, and promote strengths, agency, hope and self-determination.

- 1. Recognise the contribution of social work to promoting human rights, social justice, inclusion and equality.
- 2. Am receptive to the idea that there may be ethical dilemmas and conflicts in the social work role between promoting rights and enforcing responsibilities.

Knowledge

Develop and apply relevant knowledge from social work practice and research, social sciences, law, other professional and relevant fields, and from the experience of people who use services.

We develop our professional knowledge throughout our careers and sustain our curiosity. As a unified profession, we develop core knowledge that relates to our purpose, values and ethics. We also develop specific knowledge needed for fields of practice and roles. Our knowledge comes from social work practice, theory, law, research, expertise by experience, and from other relevant fields and disciplines. All social workers contribute to creating as well as using professional knowledge. We understand our distinctive knowledge complements that of other disciplines to provide effective services.

Identify how own learning (formal, informal and experiential) contributes to understanding and developing the social work role.

Skills and interventions

Use judgement, knowledge and authority to intervene with individuals, families and communities to promote independence, provide support, prevent harm and enable.

Social workers engage with individuals, families, and communities, working alongside people to determine their needs and wishes, and what action may be helpful.

We build productive working relationships and communicate effectively. Using our professional judgement, we employ appropriate interventions, promoting self-determination, support, protection and positive change. We develop and maintain skills relevant to our roles. We understand and take account of power differentials and use our authority appropriately. We evaluate our own practice and its impact, and how we improve outcomes for those we work with.

- 1. Can communicate clearly, accurately and appropriately to the level of training applied for, in verbal and written forms.
- 2. Demonstrate an ability to engage with people with empathy.
- 3. Am motivated to develop skills to help people find solutions to social needs.

Contexts and organisations

Engage with, inform, and adapt to changing organisational contexts, and the social and policy environments that shape practice.

Operate effectively within and contribute to the development of organisations and services, including multi-agency and inter-professional settings.

Social workers are informed about and proactively respond to the challenges and opportunities that come from changing social, policy and work contexts.

We fulfil this responsibility in accordance with our professional values and ethics, as individual and collective professionals and as members of the organisations in which we work. We collaborate, inform and are informed by our work with other social workers, other professions, individuals and communities.

Demonstrate understanding of the importance of working as a member of a team and collaborating with other colleagues in an organisation.

Professional leadership

Promote the profession and good social work practice.

Take responsibility for the professional learning and development of others.

Develop personal influence and be part of the collective leadership and impact of the profession.

We develop and show our leadership, individually and collectively, through promoting social work's purpose, practices and impact. We achieve this through diverse activities which may include: advancing practice, supervising, educating others, research, evaluation, using innovation and creativity, writing, using social media positively, being active in professional networks and bodies, contributing to policy and taking formal leadership/management roles. We promote organisational contexts conducive to good practice and learning. We work in partnership with people who use services and stakeholders in developing our leadership and aims for the profession.
